POLICY ANALYST (INTERN)

Who we are :

EU-Logos is an observatory following European policies and mainly focusing on the LIBE commission's work at the European Parliament. Our goal is to inform European citizens about current issues. EU-Logos is known to be a place for communication and interactions between European actors and subjects. We aim to inform both citizens, NGOs and members of different European and national institutions. We give tools and voices to those who build a more inclusive and more egalitarian democracy within Europe.

What is our aim :

The intern will have to manage his/her own portfolio : « Citizens' action, populism and Euroscepticism » more commonly presented as « #LaRéplique » (The riposte in French).

Previously, Eurosceptic and populist rhetoric was an exclusive domain of extreme-minded political parties. However, the emergence of these discourses within more centred and more traditional parties raises the necessity of a response.

The objective of this portfolio is to pull the rug out from under the authors of these speeches by responding to them with solid counter arguments while respecting the idea that a debate can take place. Besides, it is important to put into lights all European initiative and citizen actions in order to raise an European spirit.

The internship will consist in :

- Writing articles, notes and memos ;
- Co-organizing events about various topics linked to our portfolios and goals ;
- Participating the life of the association.

What profile we are looking for :

- Master's degree (preferably last year) in political sciences, political communication, journalism, European law or European studies.
